Staff Operations FAQ

Q: Can staff modify bookings?

A: Front desk staff may modify bookings for standard reservations, including date changes, room upgrades, and guest name corrections. Modifications to group bookings (five rooms or more) require approval from the Reservations Manager. Changes to non-refundable rate bookings are not permitted unless authorized by the Duty Manager. All modifications must be logged in the PMS with a reason code.

Q: What if a guest requests a refund?

A: Front desk staff may process refunds only if the booking was cancelled within the applicable cancellation window: 48 hours for standard rates, 72 hours for peak season, and 14 days for group bookings. For service-related refunds or exceptions, staff must escalate to the Duty Manager. Refunds are processed according to the original payment method and timeline outlined in the Payment and Refund Policy. Non-refundable bookings are not eligible for refunds.

Q: What happens in case of a double booking?

A: A double booking occurs when the same room is assigned to two guests. If discovered before arrival, immediately reassign one guest to an available room of equal or higher category and notify both guests. If discovered at check-in, apologize sincerely, relocate the affected guest to a comparable room or partner property at no extra cost, and offer a complimentary future stay voucher. Document the incident in the PMS and report to the Front Office Manager within one hour.

Q: How should VIP guests be handled?

A: VIP guests include loyalty program top-tier members, celebrities, government officials, and guests flagged by management. Pre-arrival: confirm room assignment, arrange welcome amenities, and brief the department. At check-in: use the guest's name, offer a private or expedited process, and escort them to the room. During the stay: check in daily via a personal call or note. At check-out: ensure a seamless departure and request feedback. All VIP interactions must be documented in the guest profile.

Q: What is the escalation process for complaints?

A: Level 1: Front desk staff attempt immediate resolution within their authority (e.g., room change, amenity upgrade). Level 2: If the guest is dissatisfied or the issue involves compensation, escalate to the Duty Manager. Level 3: If the complaint involves safety, legal liability, or a repeat issue, escalate to the General Manager. All complaints must be documented in the guest profile with resolution details. Follow up with the guest within 24 hours.

HR FAQ

Q: How is employee salary calculated?

A: Salaried employees receive a fixed monthly amount based on their employment contract. Hourly employees are paid based on clocked hours recorded in the biometric timekeeping system. Overtime is calculated at 1.5 times the regular hourly rate for hours exceeding 40 per week or 8 per day. Deductions include statutory taxes, social security contributions, and any authorized benefits premiums. Payslips are issued on the 25th of each month.

Q: How are bonuses approved?

A: All bonuses require HR approval. The process is as follows: (1) Department heads submit nominations via the HR system by the 5th of the month following the evaluation period. (2) The HR Director reviews for eligibility and compliance with performance criteria. (3) The General Manager gives final approval for bonuses over $500 or discretionary awards. (4) Approved bonuses are paid in the next payroll cycle. No manager may authorize a bonus outside this workflow.

Q: What is the process for requesting annual leave?

A: Employees must submit a leave request through the HR portal at least 14 days in advance. The request is routed to the department head for approval based on operational needs. Employees accrue 1.25 days of annual leave per month (15 days per year). Up to 5 unused days may be carried over with management approval. Leave requests during peak periods may be restricted and require additional justification.

Q: What happens if an employee is late three times in a month?

A: Arrival more than 15 minutes after the scheduled shift start is recorded as a tardy. Three tardies within a 30-day period result in a written warning, which is documented in the employee's personnel file. Five tardies within a 30-day period may result in a final written warning. Repeated tardiness may also affect bonus eligibility and promotion consideration. Employees should notify their supervisor as soon as possible if they expect to be late.

Q: Can an employee appeal a disciplinary action?

A: Yes. Employees may submit a written appeal to the HR Director within 7 calendar days of receiving the disciplinary notice. The HR Director will review the appeal, which may include a meeting with the employee, their supervisor, and a witness. A decision will be communicated within 14 days. If the employee disagrees with the HR Director's decision, they may request a final review by the General Manager. All appeal decisions are final and documented in the personnel file.
